Let's Start!

Let's review!

Learning Outcome:

Accurately use information about travel and vacations in social situations.

Ask your partner:

- In what festivals does your whole community participate?
- What festivals are based on the natural world?
- What festivals include tasting food?

Can Do Statements:

- I can talk about food, celebrations and traditions.
- I can express possibility and expectation.
- I can talk about what people do and what people are doing.

Let's Explore!

John and Vanessa are video chatting.

Instructions: Read the dialogue aloud.

John: Hi Vanessa!

Vanessa: Hi, John! How's your life on the cruise ship?

John: It's great. I was in Mexico in time to see the Day of the Dead festivities.

Vanessa: What happens?

John: People play music or tell stories to honor the deceased. They have picnics in cemeteries and eat a special kind of bread.

Vanessa: Neat! I could go next year.

John: Are you going to go home for Thanksgiving?

Vanessa: Yes, I should be able to go.

John: How is cooking school going?

Vanessa: I'm working hard, but I'm learning a lot. Next weekend is Fiesta on the Hill. People can taste different foods and listen to live music on the streets. We're going to organize a community barbecue. I have to buy some ingredients this afternoon.

John: Sounds tasty!

Learning Points

Should, Could, Have to

Should, could, might, have to and must are modals.

You use should, could and might to give advice, show possibility or expectation, or make a suggestion.

You use have to and must to show obligation.

The modals are followed by a verb in the base form. The verb does not change.

Examples

- I should go to the gym for an hour after work, but I sometimes do activities when we're at port.
- I often read the newspaper, or I could go for a jog before work.
- I must wake up early.
- Sometimes I have to buy ingredients or research new recipes in the afternoon.

Be Going To and Present Continuous Tense

The structure be going to + verb and the Present Continuous tense are similar. They can be used to talk about the future.

You use the structure be going to + verb to talk about future intentions or decisions in a general way.

You use the Present Continuous tense for future plans or arrangements that are planned or booked.

Examples

- I'm staying in New York for two weeks.
- I'm going to stay in New York for a while.
- We're visiting Baja, California until November 5th.
- We're going to visit Baja, California sometime next year.
